A Common Cold

Is often the beginning of serious affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes, and Lungs. Therefore, the importance of early and effective treatment cannot be overestimated. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral may always be relied upon for the speedy cure of a Cold or Cough.

Last January I was attacked with a severe Cold, which, by neglect and frequent exposures, became worse. Finally settling on my lungs. A terrible cough soon followed, accompanied by pain in the chest, from which I suffered intensely. After trying various remedies, without obtaining relief, I commenced taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was

Speedily Cured.

I am satisfied that this remedy saved my life. —Jno. Webster, Pawtucket, R. I. I contracted a severe cold, which suddenly developed into Pneumonia, presenting dangerous and chronic symptoms. My physician at once ordered the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. His instructions were followed, and the result was a rapid and permanent cure. —H. E. Simpson, Rogers Prairie, Texas.

Two years ago I suffered from a severe Cold which settled on my lungs. I consulted various physicians, and took the medicines they prescribed, but received only temporary relief. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking two bottles of this medicine I was cured. Since then I have given the Pectoral to my children, and cured them.

The Best Remedy

for Colds, Coughs, and all Throat and Lung diseases, ever used in my family. —Robert Vanderpool, Meadville, Pa.

Some time ago I took a slight Cold, which, being neglected, grew worse, and settled on my lungs. I had a hacking cough, and was very weak. Those who know me best considered my life to be in great danger. I continued to suffer until I commenced using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Less than one bottle of this valuable medicine cured me. I feel that I owe the preservation of my life to its curative powers. —Mrs. Ann Lockwood, Akron, New York.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is considered, here, the one great remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs, and is more in demand than any other medicine of its class. —J. F. Roberts, Magnolia, Ark.

THE BUCKWHEAT CROP.

Precautions and Care Necessary to Obtaining a Satisfactory Yield.

The buckwheat crop can not be stored as other crops can, on account of the carbonaceous nature of the grain; its dark color, its shape and its moisture. All these combined, cause it to oxidize rapidly, and to generate considerable heat. All dark-colored porous substances containing carbon have this property of absorbing oxygen, in which process heat is produced. Charcoal, for instance, will absorb so much oxygen as to ignite; oily rags, or waste and shavings will, as is well known, take fire and burn by this spontaneous combustion caused by the absorption of oxygen. It is worse still when buckwheat is left in the chaff and not thrashed, even for twenty-four hours, as the mass will heat so much in this time as to spoil the grain for flour or germination. For this reason it is necessary to thrash the buckwheat from the field, and this necessarily controls the manner of harvesting. Buckwheat can be cut with a self-raking reaper, and the gavels are set up on end without binding, so that the straw will dry out more thoroughly. The whole plant is succulent and difficult to dry, and the gavels can not be bound for this reason. The grain hangs to the stems by very weak pedicels, which snap off with great ease when they are dry; hence harvesting should be done when the crop is somewhat damp, lest the grain be wasted to an unprofitable extent. The early morning, after a cloudy night when there is a dew, is the best time to cut this grain. This plant has the habit of continuous flowering until stopped by frost. There are, therefore, ripe grain, green and immature grain, and blossoms on it at the same time. The grains fill the best in the cool weather, and so long as the frosts are delayed the crop should stand to fill out the grain. This peculiarity of the crop makes it desirable to postpone cutting until the day before the frost, if one could only know when this might be, for the longer it stands the greater the yield. A crop which stood and grew until November in one year when there was no frost until then, yielded seventy-five bushels per acre; but when frost came in September or soon after, the yield will rarely amount to over twenty-five or thirty bushels to the acre. The gavels, loosely bunched together and not bound, are stood up on end until the straw is dry. The large quantity of sap in the stems flows to the grain, and much of the unripe grain fills and ripens as the gavels stand in the field. It is necessary to watch the crop, as if the weather is wet or cloudy it will dry very slowly, and the thrashing must be done carefully, as the soft, starchy grains are easily broken, and much waste will occur if the thrashing-machine is used, unless there is careful management. The upper and lower teeth of the machine should be removed to avoid beating the grain too much and so breaking it. A piece of smooth plank fitted in place of the concave will secure safe and easy thrashing. As the grain is thrashed it should be cleaned up and separated from the chaff the same day. The grain can not be left in a bin or even in bags safely, but should be spread on a dry floor and turned daily. As the most profitable use for this grain is to make it into flour, and the earliest flour in the market brings the highest price, it is best to take it to the mill and sell it or have it ground as soon as it is thrashed, and before it has had time to take a sweat, which it does soon after thrashing, in consequence of a fermentation which occurs within it. This is a critical time with this grain and should be looked for carefully. Whenever the fermentation occurs the grain should be thinly spread on a dry floor, on a dry, windy day, and thoroughly aired. On account of its starchy character, too, this grain should be ground only on such a day as this, for the flour will absorb moisture and heat injuriously unless this is prevented. Well-managed buckwheat is a profitable crop. There is not much labor in growing or harvesting it, and it occupies the ground less than three months. There is no better crop than this to use for renovating poor grass land, for the sod can be turned under after the grass has been mowed or pastured off in July, and buckwheat sown to be plowed under, or the grass and clover-seed may be sown with the buckwheat. If the crop is plowed under the land may be sown with wheat or with grass and may be sown with wheat or with grass and clover, with some turnips mixed, and a good catch of grass be secured. The best of the turnips may be pulled and the small ones be left to shelter the young grass through the winter, and dying, will afford useful manure in the spring. —N. Y. Witness.

—Citron Cake.—Three cups of sugar; one of butter, one of sweet milk, four cups of flour, one-half teaspoonful of soda and one of cream of tartar. Cut up one-half pound of citron fine and thin and the whites of ten eggs. Cream the butter and sugar; sift the flour and add gradually, then the citron. Beat the eggs until stiff and add last; sift the cream of tartar in the flour and dissolve the soda in a little tepid water. Beat all thoroughly before stirring in the eggs. —Boston Budget.

—A. P. S., an observant and very intelligent farmer of Kent County, Md., says humus, vegetable matter, is the great need of our soils, that it is not necessary to buy artificial nitrogen and that the cheap fertilizers are the best. He thinks that the old story of the value of nitrogen is passing away, like other mistakes that have been made.

—Greatly Exposed.—Decatur has recently become the focus of the astounding facts, that several of their friends who had been pronounced by their physicians as incurable, and beyond all hope, suffering with that dreadful monster Consumption, have been completely cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, the only remedy that does positively cure all throat and lung diseases, Coughs, Colds, Asthma and Bronchitis. Trial bottles free at J. A. Swearingen's Drug Store. Large bottles $1.

Our business was established in 1855, thirty-two years ago, on the corner of South Main and Wood streets, where we are still located. The above fact proves conclusively that we have attained marked success in catering to the wants of the public, and should be accepted as a sufficient guarantee for the future. We can as before supply you with the best of everything in our line, and only ask for a continuation of the very liberal patronage heretofore bestowed, being satisfied that we can MEET all demands made upon us.

ESCAPE OF FRED AHOITZ.

He Walked Out of Jail Saturday Night and is Yet at Liberty.

Something of a stir in official circles was caused Sunday morning when the startling discovery was made that Fred Ahoitz had escaped from the debtor's cell in the county jail and had fled to parts unknown. Fred was convicted at the last term of court under an indictment for forgery, and was sentenced under the verdict to one year at hard labor in the penitentiary. He took the case before the Supreme Court and since that action has been in jail waiting for that court to render a decision in his case, which will be forthcoming within a week at Ottawa.

Mr. Ahoitz was indicted for forgery in two cases, charged with signing the name of George Stare to appeal bonds without the knowledge or consent of Stare. He got into this trouble through a long series of law suits.

THE ESCAPE.

In June last Dr. Drury, the county physician, told Sheriff Mauzy that Ahoitz should be given a more comfortable place than the body of the jail; that if he was kept there he would die. His eyes were certainly in very bad shape and were highly inflamed. Part of the time he was unable to see. The sheriff saw Judge Hughes and State's Attorney Vail, neither of whom had any objection to placing Ahoitz in the debtor's cell, the upper room directly over the jail office, the door to which is fastened by a common lock. Accordingly the change was made, much to the satisfaction of Fred, who had the apartment all to himself.

His wife, the doctor and others visited him frequently. There was not the slightest suspicion in the mind of the sheriff that Ahoitz had any intention of effecting his escape, but the sequel shows that he had been planning to get away from the time his eyes became diseased.

Saturday night at about 8 o'clock he quietly opened the door of his cell, probably with a duplicate key procured in some manner at present unknown, walked through the upper hall to the stairway and descended quickly to the kitchen in the basement, passing southward to the cellar beneath the stone part of the jail, and going out into the yard through an open basement window, scudding away east or west on Washington street. While Ahoitz was getting away the residence part of the jail and the jail office were illuminated and everything was quiet.

Harry Midkiff, Willie Foster and another young man were in the room directly east of the office. They heard footsteps, and came out to discover who was going through the hall. They looked out in the yard, at the front and at the west side, but saw none. Then the girl called from the kitchen, stating that some one had gone through that apartment. By this time Sheriff Mauzy was on the scene with a dark lantern, aiding in the search, but as the prisoner had made good his escape through the window, of course all failed to see anybody. The sheriff went in among the prisoners and looked into every cell, but found no one missing. It did not occur to him that Ahoitz had escaped and he didn't think of looking into his cell. He had every confidence in Ahoitz, and at no time believed that he would try to break jail, because the old man seemed satisfied with his room and was confident that the Supreme Court would give him a new trial. The sheriff finally came to the conclusion that some thief in search of something to eat had entered the kitchen and had fled when discovered by the girl.

Sunday morning it was found that Ahoitz had escaped, and the manner of his departure at once dawned upon the sheriff and his assistants.

A NOTE OF FAREWELL.

In the room Mr. Ahoitz left a characteristic note addressed to the sheriff. In it he begged the sheriff's pardon for giving him the slip, and declared that he could not bear to lie in jail any longer.

He begged that no effort be made to hunt him down, for he would return as soon as the Supreme Court decided on his case. He further wrote that his wife nor no one else had anything to do with his escape, but that it was the result of his own plan. He also wrote that it was a hazel brush jury that convicted him, and that he was not guilty of forgery.

It is learned that since June Mr.

Ahoitz has been arranging to have his bondsmen, David Garver and Ezekiel Hovell, surrender him to the sheriff, and this was accomplished on August 22, one week ago. Ahoitz was under bonds in the case on which he was convicted, and was also under bonds in another forgery case. He must have been confident that he would get away, but first wanted to release his bondsmen from all responsibility.

The Sheriff and Marshal Mason are making every possible effort to capture Ahoitz, but thus far there have been no tidings of his whereabouts.

The sentiment about the streets is that no one would weep very copiously should Ahoitz manage to get away, and retain his liberty for all time to come; but this sentiment will not prevent the Sheriff from doing his duty and doing all he possibly can to capture the escaped prisoner.
